reassurances be given that there should be “freedom of conscience within the public square” (Bishops appeal to FM to stand by MP who voted against abortion bill, July 19). This was following the abusive attacks on Dr Lisa Cameron for her pro-life stance in voting against the move by Westminster to impose legalised abortion and gay marriage on Northern Ireland. Politicians’ freedom of conscience must be protected | The ... This metaphysical impasse is therefore not a merely private matter, but also one of political, public conscience, that has to be democratically contested. And yet the liberal, pro-abortionist side of the argument must logically deny this contestability, for reasons that we have seen. Naught for Your
