Capitalism is a system of exploitation and oppression. This series uses the insights of Social Reproduction Theory to deepen our understanding of the intimacy of that relationship, and the contradictions within it, past and present. The books include empirical investigations of the ways in which social oppressions of race, sexuality, ability, gender and more inhabit, shape and are shaped by the processes of creating labour power for capital. the two theoretical stances have been taken as antagonistic—as a confrontation between Marxist (social reproduction theory) and non-Marxist (intersectionality) approaches. Social Reproduction Theory Marx and Capital are once more central to the analysis of oppression in the form of social reproduction theory (SRT). A number of Marxist feminists have long referred to “social reproduction” in relation to women’s oppression; but now SRT is winning a new layer to looking at Marx.
